WORLD COUNCIL OF INDIGENOUS GAMES

SPORTS FOR DEVELOPMENT AND PEACE

1. Organization Overview: The World Council of Indigenous Games (WIG) is an international non-profit, non-governmental organization working across 25+ countries to preserve, safeguard, and promote Indigenous games, traditional sports, and Indigenous knowledge systems. Indigenous games are deeply connected to land, biodiversity, seasonal cycles, and sustainable lifestyles. Through its global initiatives, WIG contributes to the objectives of the United Nations and its agency frameworks, including the United Nations Convention to Combat Desertification (UNCCD), by promoting:

- Environmental stewardship and sustainable land care
- Community resilience and climate adaptation
- Nature-based cultural practices
- Low-carbon and sustainable lifestyles
- Intergenerational transmission of Indigenous knowledge
- Sustainable land management and ecosystem respect

4. Institutional Capacity: The World Council of Indigenous Games (WIG) operates under formally adopted statutes and bylaws that ensure transparent governance, accountability, and effective organizational management. WIG maintains structured leadership, regular governing body meetings, and documented decision-making processes. The organization upholds financial transparency through proper financial management and reporting practices, and works with an international membership network across more than 25 countries.

During the reporting period of April 2025 – February 2026, WIG strengthened its institutional capacity through strategic planning, international collaboration, knowledge publications, regional events, and engagement with United Nations processes, including provisional accreditation under the UNCCD. These structures and actions enable WIG to engage responsibly and constructively within the United Nations and its agency frameworks.

5. Declaration: The World Council of Indigenous Games (WIG) hereby confirms that the information provided in this submission is accurate and reflects activities conducted during the reporting period of April 2025 – February 2026 (11 months).

WIG remains committed to supporting the objectives of the United Nations and its agency frameworks by promoting Indigenous knowledge systems, sustainable cultural practices, environmental stewardship, and climate-conscious community engagement across its international network.

Yours sincerely,

Dr. Ramya (She/Her)
General Secretary
